PNWA works with you to meet regional goals for 2011

Effectively work with new leadership in DC

Continue to seek increased federal funding for navigation, trade and energy in the Pacific Northwest

Lead the national coalition to make Section 214
permanent in the next Water Resources
Development Act (WRDA)

Work to streamline the regulatory process

Continue to protect navigation as the FCRPS BiOp litigation continues

Expand PNWA's environmental focus to include issues such as ballast water, vessel discharges, air emissions and climate change

Profile and History

PNWA is a regional non-profit trade association that supports navigation, environmental and regulatory issues in the Northwest.

Founded in 1934, PNWA led the way for Congressional authorization and funding to build the locks and dams on the Columbia and Snake Rivers. Since then, our reach has expanded to include members throughout Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Northern California.

In 2009, PNWA celebrated 75 years of excellence and continues to be a leader in advocacy, access and federal public policy development for the Northwest navigation community.

Our Regional Strength Is Your Advantage

PNWA is the only organization that develops a cooperative, regional approach to addressing public policy related to transportation, trade, energy, the environment, and infrastructure. Our diverse membership has made PNWA a trusted organization in the eyes of regional and national leaders. Our regular presence in Washington, DC means that we have relationships in place that will benefit your organization when critical issues arise. With PNWA on your side, you will have the ability to present your projects and policy concerns not only to your local member of Congress, but to every member of the Northwest Congressional delegation.

PNWA Profile

Over 75 successful years advocating for the Northwest

The region's leader on navigation, environmental and regulatory issues

Professional and effective advocacy in Washington DC and the Northwest

Your Seat at the Table is Waiting

Pacific Northwest Waterways Association is the only regional trade group supporting your interests in both critical economic and environmental issues. PNWA membership provides you the opportunity to shape your own future and the economy of the Pacific Northwest.

Decisions are being made this year that will affect the way you do business for decades to come. Make your voice heard. Take your seat at the table.

Join your colleagues, and become a member of PNWA today. For more information, contact Heather Stebbings at 503-234-8553 or visit us on our website at www.pnwa.net.

Strength in Numbers

PNWA's membership includes steamship operators, tug and barge lines, public utilities, agriculture, manufacturing and forest products industries, as well as ports from Northern Puget Sound to Northern California, and from the lower Columbia River to Lewiston, Idaho.

With over 100 member businesses and public agencies from four states that believe in what we do, our strength in numbers means we can get the job done!

"I think the secret of your success is bringing people together behind the same priorities – and then speaking with one voice. That's really made you a powerhouse in Washington, DC and given our region a strong voice – and a seat at the table. That's a credit to your members and especially to your leadership."
