

INLAND WATERWAYS TRUST FUND

The Inland Waterways Trust Fund (IWTF) is intended to pay for 50% of construction and major rehabilitation costs on the nation's inland waterways. In recent years, however, the IWTF has collected less than is necessary for projects across the country. In 2014, significant progress was made to improve the future of the fund.

Diesel tax increase passed

In December 2014, tax extension legislation included a 9 cent per gallon increase to IWTF collections. As of April 1, 2015, towboaters transiting the inland waters of the U.S. will contribute 29 cents per gallon to the fund. This increase was supported by industry and is seen as a positive step forward to ensuring the IWTF remains solvent for years to come.

PNWA supports regional equity of IWTF allocations

The Water Resources Reform & Development Act of 2014 (WRRDA) had many provisions regarding the IWTF. The bill recognized the inadequacies in revenue structure, proposed a series of project delivery reforms and increased communication between the Inland Waterways Users Board (IWUB), the Assistant Secretary and Congress. It also required utilization of the IWUB's 20-year Capital Development Plan, which is a prioritized list of projects recommended for IWTF funding.

The Northwest currently has no new construction or major rehab projects on the horizon. Still, Northwest towboat companies continue to pay into the fund. WRRDA recognized this type of circumstance and required that all U.S. geographic areas are represented in the Capital Development Plan. WRRDA also required that the Plan be reviewed every five years, providing an on-ramp for projects that may arise after the list is initially developed. PNWA is very supportive of these two provisions which will allow Northwest projects to receive funding from the IWTF, in the event we see a major rehab or new construction project on the inland Columbia Snake River System in the future.

PNWA opposes lockage & vessel fees, supports continued dialogue

The PNWA membership is pleased that the IWTF will accrue increased diesel tax revenues, and we support a continued national dialogue regarding the future of the fund.

The Bush, Obama and Trump Administrations have all proposed new fees including a new per vessel charge or lockage fee for commercial barges using locks operated by the Corps. PNWA opposes these concepts, as it would be inordinately detrimental to Columbia Snake River System users.

PNWA members look forward to working with the Administration, Congress and industry as the conversation moves forward. PNWA also continues to partner with the Portland and Walla Walla Districts of the Corps to ensure that the needs on our river system are anticipated, identified, and addressed in a timely, operations & maintenance (O&M) fashion.
